Single-ascending-dose bioequivalence study of a generic formulation of tranexamic acid (Pelitec) 500mg tablets compared to the reference product (Panadol). Pelitec is a generic oral solution of tranexamic acid (T) 500mg/5ml marketed by Sandoz Ltd. The objective of this study was to compare the single-dose bioequivalence of Pelitec to the reference product in a randomized, open-label, two-period, two-treatment crossover study. In each period, 18 volunteers received a single oral dose of a solution of Pelitec or Panadol 500mg as primary treatments with a washout of 1 week between periods. Blood samples for pharmacokinetic evaluation were taken up to 12h after dosing. Pharmacokinetic variables calculated using non-compartmental methods were maximum plasma concentration (Cmax), time to reach maximum plasma concentration (Tmax) and area under the curve (AUC). The geometric mean ratios (90% confidence interval) for Cmax, AUC and Tmax were 92% (87-96%), 93% (90-96%) and 94% (87-100%), respectively. These results meet the regulatory criteria for bioequivalence. Both products were well tolerated. In summary, Pelitec is bioequivalent to Panadol as assessed with respect to both bioavailability 6d1f23a050
